1996 MITOBO, et al

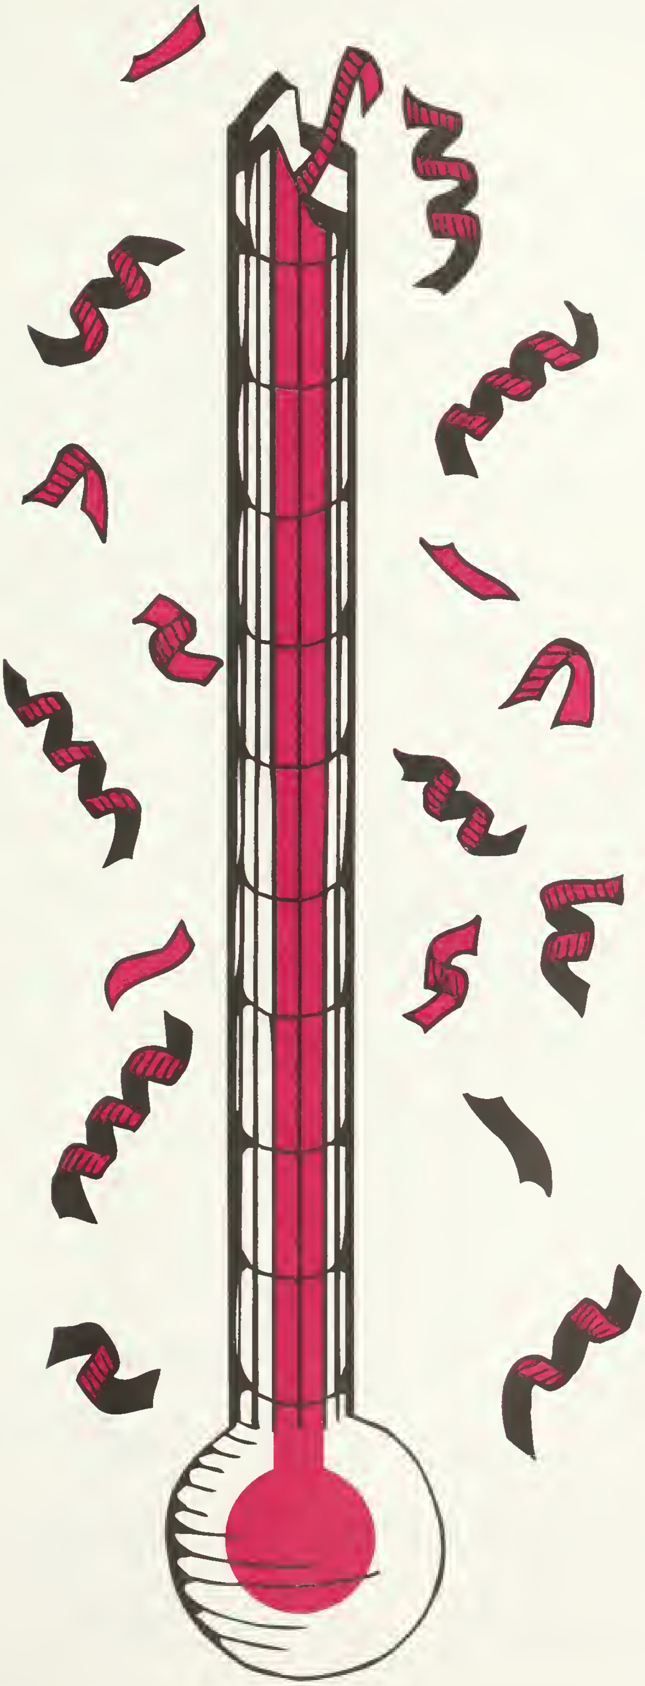
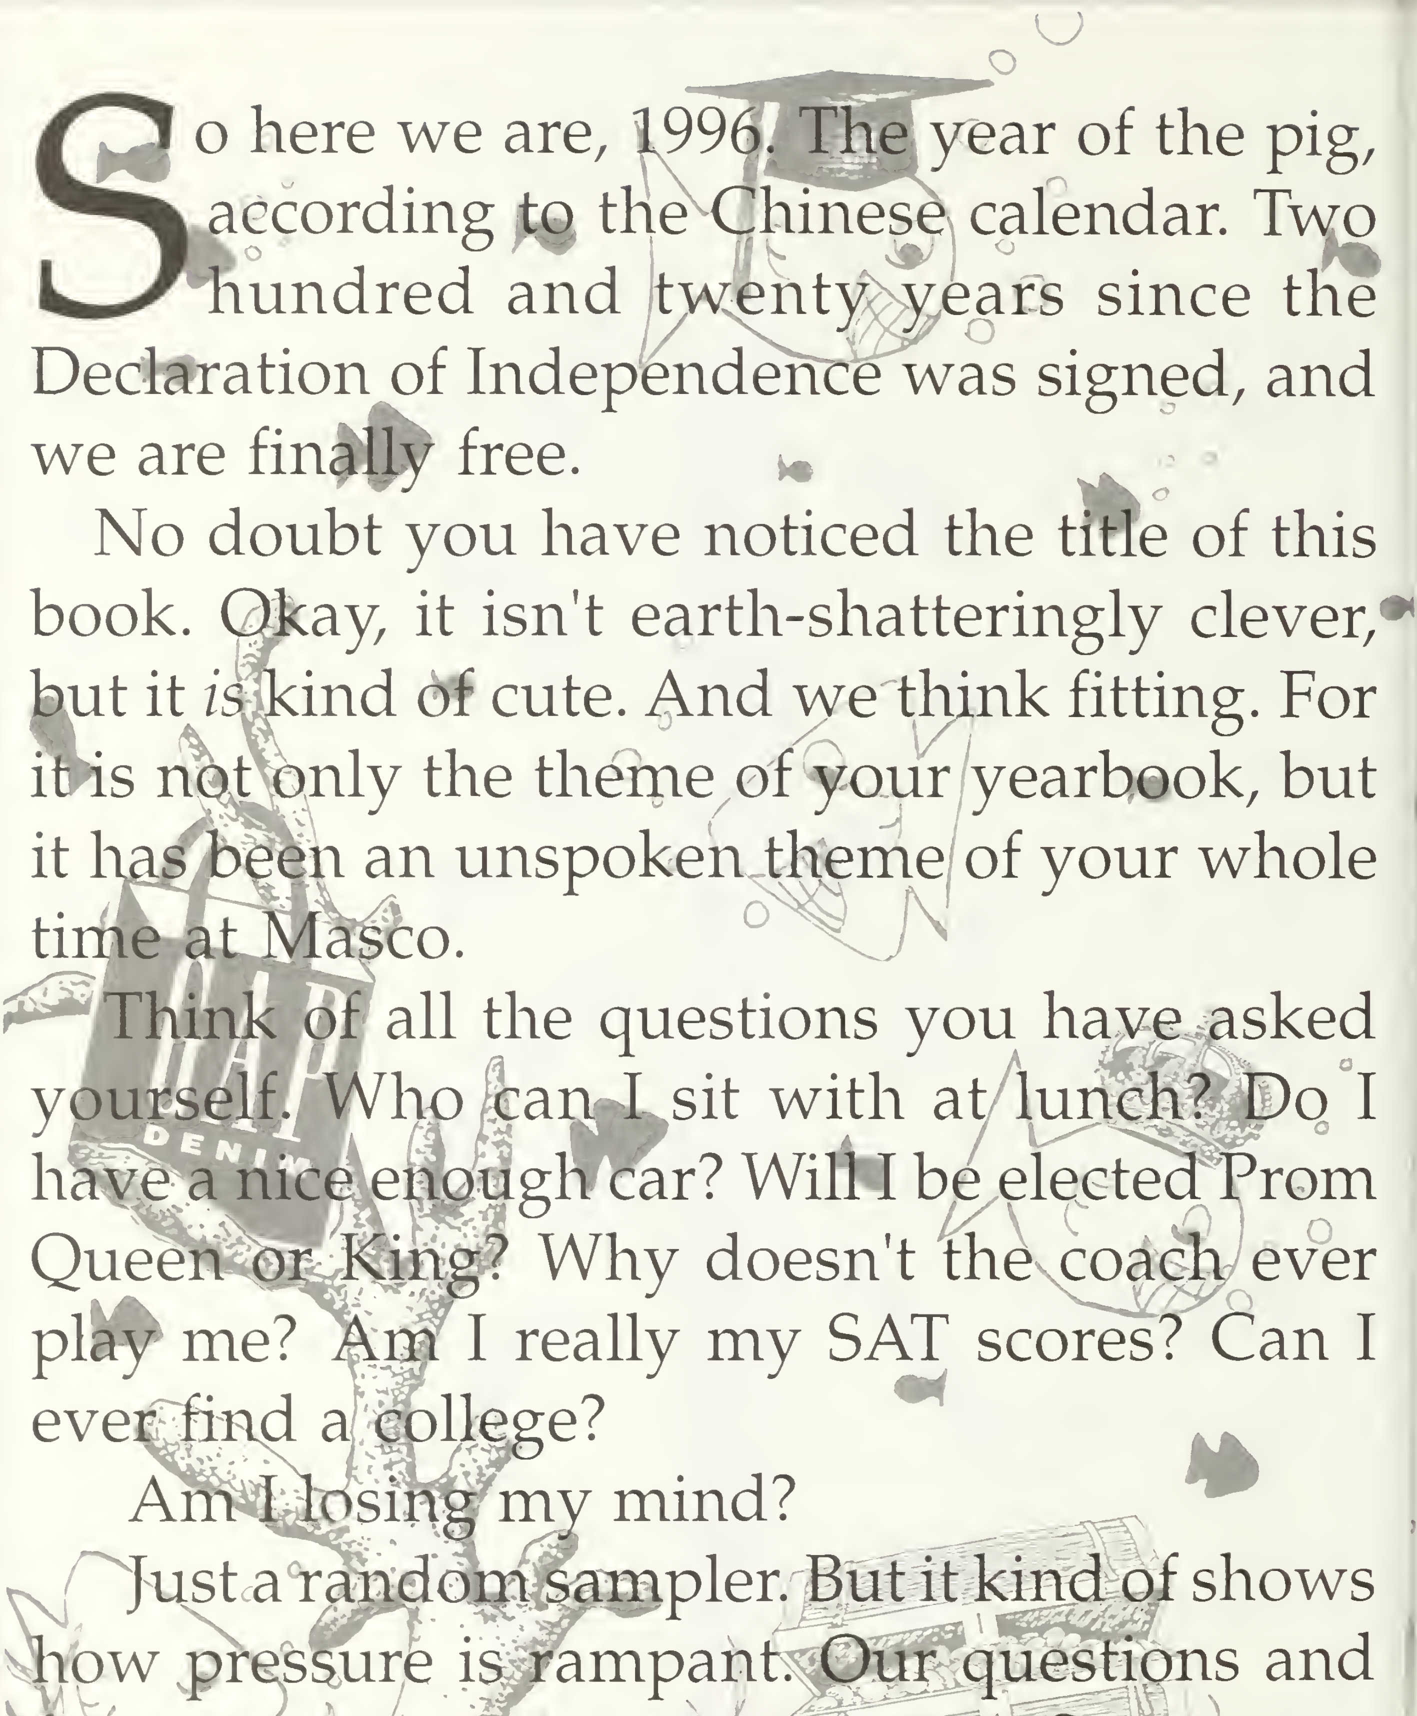
Masconomet Regional High School
20 Endicott Road
Topsfield, Massachusetts 01983





So here we are, 1996. The year of the pig, according to the Chinese calendar. Two hundred and twenty years since the Declaration of Independence was signed, and we are finally free.

No doubt you have noticed the title of this book. Okay, it isn't earth-shatteringly clever, but it is kind of cute. And we think fitting. For it is not only the theme of your yearbook, but it has been an unspoken theme of your whole time at Masco.

Think of all the questions you have asked yourself. Who can I sit with at lunch? Do I have a nice enough car? Will I be elected Prom Queen or King? Why doesn't the coach ever play me? Am I really my SAT scores? Can I ever find a college?

Am I losing my mind?

Just a random sampler. But it kind of shows how pressure is rampant. Our questions and fears are too numerous to name. Some were just the passing worries of childhood. Others will come back at us year after year, only hidden behind different words. After all, in kindergarten all the girls wanted jelly shoes. Now it's GAP Jeans. Same situation, only disguised.

It seems that the real question we should leave Masco with is not if we felt stress, but rather how we dealt with it. This book will (hopefully) show the positive solutions we all found. A lot of good has come out of the heat; after all, isn't it only time and pressure that will make a diamond out of a lump of coal?

So fear not. The staff has tried not to be negative and dismal. Just honest. Strap on your SCUBA gear and dive with us to the depths of our time in high school. Surely there is sunken treasure to be found. And if we all stay together and take it slow, nobody will get the bends on the way up.

DEDICATION

MR. BOB SERINO

Mr. Serino understands what it is like to be a member of the Class of 1996. Four years ago, when most of us were first venturing up to the high school, he was among the newcomers. Along the way, Mr. Serino has helped us deal with some of high school's most daunting pressures. In the classroom, he was committed to seeing each of us succeed, no matter how difficult the material. In sports, Mr. Serino gave us such motivational pep talks that we were able to find the strength to push ourselves a little more. Even his room is plastered with quotes that remind us no goal is too high nor obstacle too big to stand in the way of success. Jogging through the halls in his bright Masco jacket, slapping high fives to everyone, Mr. Serino doesn't look much like a teacher. That is because Mr. Serino is more like our friend. And like a true friend, he has always been the first to point out our shortcomings and the first to congratulate us when we achieve. He has persistently demanded, whether in school, sports, class activities, or just life in general, that we always give it our best. Thank you Mr. Serino for giving the Class of 1996 yours.

SPECIAL THANKS TO...

The 1996 MITOBO, et al Staff would like to take this chance to thank everyone who took time out of their own busy lives to help us put this massive book together.

First and foremost, Sue Sanford, our adviser: we can never repay you for all of your time, advice, lost sleep, and food. We hope we've made your last year as Yearbook Adviser your very best year. Thank you Tom (Patches) Keeley, Jostens Printing and Publishing Representative, for your professional opinion. Thanks also to Mike Miller of On Location Studio of Photography - we never could have done this without you. Thank you Terry Meinelt for your artistic advice and creative ideas. Thanks to Lorraine LeBel and Marie Foster of the Copy Center, Betty Booye, Elaine Crippen, and Jan Scibelli of the Senior High Office, and our financial adviser, Tom Hussey. Thank you Wally and the rest of the Custodial Staff, both day and evening shifts, for helping us get the job done. And thanks especially to all of our generous teachers for putting up with our difficulty getting our assignments done on time, especially Larry Lowe. You are the people who have made the Masco Experience a pleasant experience.

Thank you Molly Cronin for the Dedication Text and layout assistance with the Dedication Page, Kyle Mushkin for the Spanish Exchange Text, and Gina Santo for the England Trip Text. Thanks to the following students for candids: Kelly Cole, Tracey Costa, Molly Cronin, Blaire Daily, Jet Eveleth, Laura Gettings, Robin Holmgren, Mark Swan, Catey Peters, Nicole Yanchus, and everyone who had disposable cameras. Thanks Rebecca Nappa and Carrie Dunsmore for running last-minute errands for us. And thanks to everyone who sold ads and to those who bought them.

Finally, and most importantly, thank you to all of our families and friends for your love and support. That was the most important contribution anyone could have made.

We hope we've covered everyone. If we've missed you, we sincerely apologize.

If we've learned anything from all the pressure it is this: "A dream is only a dream without work" (Serino, 3-5-96). Work is what brings visions to life. And anybody can make their visions a reality if they really want to badly enough, but it can't be done alone.

Thousands upon thousands of hours have gone into this book. We hope you enjoy it.

"It just seems like you agreed to have this certain personality or something, for no reason at all, just to make things easier for everyone, but when you think about it how do you know if it's really you? And mean this whole thing with year book, it's like everyone's in this big hurry to make this book to supposably remember what happend, but it's not what really happend, it's what everyone thought was supposed to happen. Because if you made a book of what really happend, I'd be a really upsetting book. You know in my humble opinion."

These past years have been a blur, so many paths to follow and plenty more to create if none seem to fit. People change so much, so quickly, it is hard to keep track of your friends or foes, But your true friends will always stay by your side through it all, and those are the ones that you will always remember and love. We made it through together, you've always been there for me and I hope I've done the same for you I'll miss you next year, though I'll never admit it . Don't ever change and keep smiling. When I was a junior, in history class I got an A on one of my tests and I overheard the girl sitting next to me say that there's no way I could have gotten that grade and I must have cheated because I am so stupid. I don't believe that anyone is "stupid" so don't let anyone get you down. You can do anything you want to do you just have to believe in yourself.
I'd like to thank everyone who truly believed in me + helped me make it through these past 4 years - they haven't exactly been easy. Thanks Ms. Haas, Mr. M, + Laurie, Evan I miss you Thanks Dan. I'll never forget you Harmony Kim, Kate, Gwen - There's someone at the door!

Hey folks... it does not grieve me to say that I think most of you are unoriginal, trendy idiots who do nothing but look the same to be different. Maybe if some of you get some originality or finally reach the air breathing, land dwelling stage of evolution, I might decide to spare your pathetic life when I conquer the Earth (though not likely). You are all doomed!!! And to all of you "depressed" Nine Inch Nails fans who get amused listening and identifying to some 28 year old whining about his life... please progress at least to the point of babboons. Trust me you really don't need Trent Reznors so called "emotional" lyrics to keep you on your feet. I won't even comment on his horribly simple guitar playing/composing. Try to listen to some talented musicians in the future. Geddy Lee, Alex Lifeson, Neil Peart, Jon Anderson, Steve Howe, Bill Bruford, Robert Fripp, Rick Wakeman, and the immortal (yet currently dead) Jaco Pastorius is a good start and will show you the way...... There will be some who never look back on these years and there will be some who do nothing but - try to do a little of both. But when you do look back, try to think back on the times we spent laughing, because those are the only times really worth remembering.

far as human eye can see,
Saw the vision of the world,
and all the wonder that would be."

If only there could be an invention that bottled up a memory, like scent. And it never faded, never got stale. And then, when one wanted it, the bottle could be uncorked, and it would be like living the moment all over again.

Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were killed by...

According to the senior class, it was definitely a conspiracy, led by O.J. Simpson. Kato Kaelin, the dog, and Maggie Simpson drove the getaway car, possibly flying a saucer donated by the Man on the Moon. Masco seniors Tim Pierce, Joe Beauparlant, Athan Diskes, Ken Gould, Josh Woodbury, and Drew Lalosh were somehow involved. Martha Stewart started it all when she heard that Nicole didn't like gardening and Ron always burnt the potatoes, and she decided that their presence in the world wasn't a good thing. All of this was hidden from the American people by secret agents of the media in cahoots with Lance Ito.

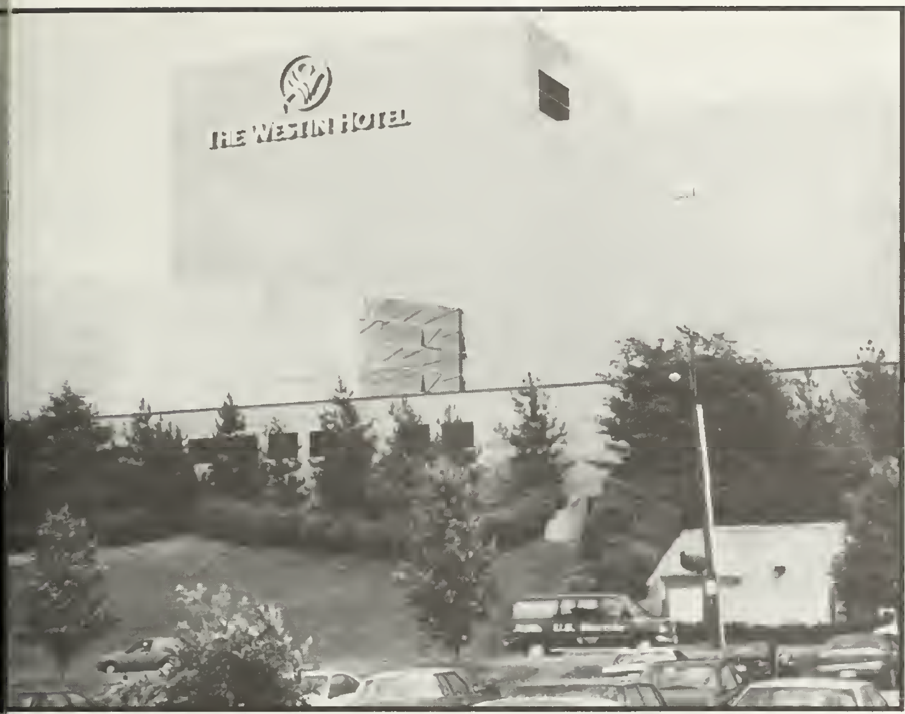
The Prom

The Westin Hotel in Waltham was the site of this year's gala event. Limosines appeared to be the favored mode of transportation. However, the pressure of how to afford them, along with the pressure to find the right date, buy that perfect dress, and manage not to spill anything on that perfect dress kept many from fully enjoying the weeks leading up to it. The Juniors, Seniors, and lucky underclassmen, dressed to the hilt, supped on delicacies ranging from lobster bisque to carrot cake. Although the DJ was a no-show, our replacement did have the theme song, Led Zeppelin's "Thank You." The teachers danced up just as much of a storm as us youngins, and had just as much fun.



"And so
Today,
My World It Smiles"

Halloween Party

"The Halloween Party was like a junior high dance from a nightmare," commented one senior sage. There is some truth to that statement. The costumes ranged from exotic to unique to downright bizarre. Ghosts were not of the normal throw-on-a-sheet genre, but included the King himself. He had his wife Priscilla in tow. The gang from Sesame Street was all there, as was Tim Peirce and his gang. Encounters with the authorities were kept to a minimum, but they did pressure a few. Still, everyone had a spooky time.

TRICK OR TREAT

Holiday Party

This year's senior Holiday Party was held at Adele's in Middleton. Dressed in their semi-formal wear, the Seniors had a really great time. The pressure was on not to have a repeat of the Halloween Party's fiasco. The DJ played songs that were fun to dance to. And dance we did. There was not one person who wasn't breaking a sweat. Manny really got everyone into the swing of things, groovin' with Molly E. and Amy G. There are even reported rumors of the Validictorian dancing on the buffet table. Fun was had by all.

Senior Valentine's Party

Danvers' Village Green Restaurant was the place to be on Friday, February 9th, 1996. The Senior Valentine's Day Party came at the perfect time, when everybody had a case of the winter doldrums. From the invitations to the food to the company, nothing was lacking. Unlike most things related to V-Day, there was no pressure to be romantic. You didn't need to bring a date, just yourself. Everyone was tired from a school year packed with activities and academics, but that didn't stop anyone from having a good time. Entertainment was provided by the chaperones, who were quite the dancing fools, and by Mrs. Shapiro in the role of cupid. The festivities reached a fevered pitch with the dance contest, won by Jet Eveleth and Bryan Sennott. It was another great party put on by the Class of '96, and one that we can remember fondly when we are apart.

Happy

Frolics

"Let's dazzle 'em!" Serino shouted. He had a vision of how Frolics should be- quality, chem-free, wholesome family-fun. He wanted to improve the event's reputation, and add a touch of class to this class activity.

The Frolics staff, under the fearless leadership of directors Ben Canonica and Tracey Costa, was able to help the class rally together and fulfill Bob's dream. Although the subject of much debate initially, the fair theme worked great. From the parking attendants to the kissing booth, nothing was lacking. As for the acts, they were all (well, almost all) tasteful and well-done. Some of the more memorable: The Return of Tony C., Snaps, Sal's Pizza, Freebird, Jeff Eats a Cat, Madam, Math Team Cheerleaders and the chorus lines. A few broken teeth aside, Frolics '96 was sane and safe (despite what a certain prominent community member might think). It was great time and worth all the hard work.

MEN

At last you have made the jump into that elite group of upperclassmen and the pressure has reached an all-time high. Sometimes you think that you will crack. You're supposed to be worried about colleges and SATs, because this is most important year of your life. But the real world still seems so far away. Right now, you are just trying to balance the activities that you love and the work that you have to do...and still have some fun. You are older, and more mature (maybe), and you are finally getting some of the respect that you deserve. You are being pulled in many different directions, but it's probably only because you have so much to offer. Things can only get better-right?

You learn this year in Bio that baroreceptors lower blood pressure; too bad they can't lower the increasing pressure of your work load. The year begins in exactly the same place where Freshman year left off, with running to classes under the weight of a 100 lb. book bag. Perhaps your most stressful experience this year is when the temperature is below zero and Mr. Puleo still forces you to go outside for Project Adventure. Believe it or not, the pressures of Sophomore year are nothing compared to those of the next two years. Take advantage of these laid-back days; tomorrow the pressure gauge may read "caution."

The pressures of the high school hit a Fresh like a heavy bookbag. One adjustment is dealing wit hunger that grows inside your stomach as you wait wait for lunch to come. Then, when the time comes, tr
to sprint to the cafeteria, but finding the crow hallways nearly impossible to breath in, let alone through. Finally, you make it. But you must eat qu in order to get to science in time. There, as your sand settles, you are caught totally off guard by your tea who jumps on his desk and screams the equatio pressure at you. It is all very new, and cert interesting. Hopefully, it prepares you for the thre years ahead.

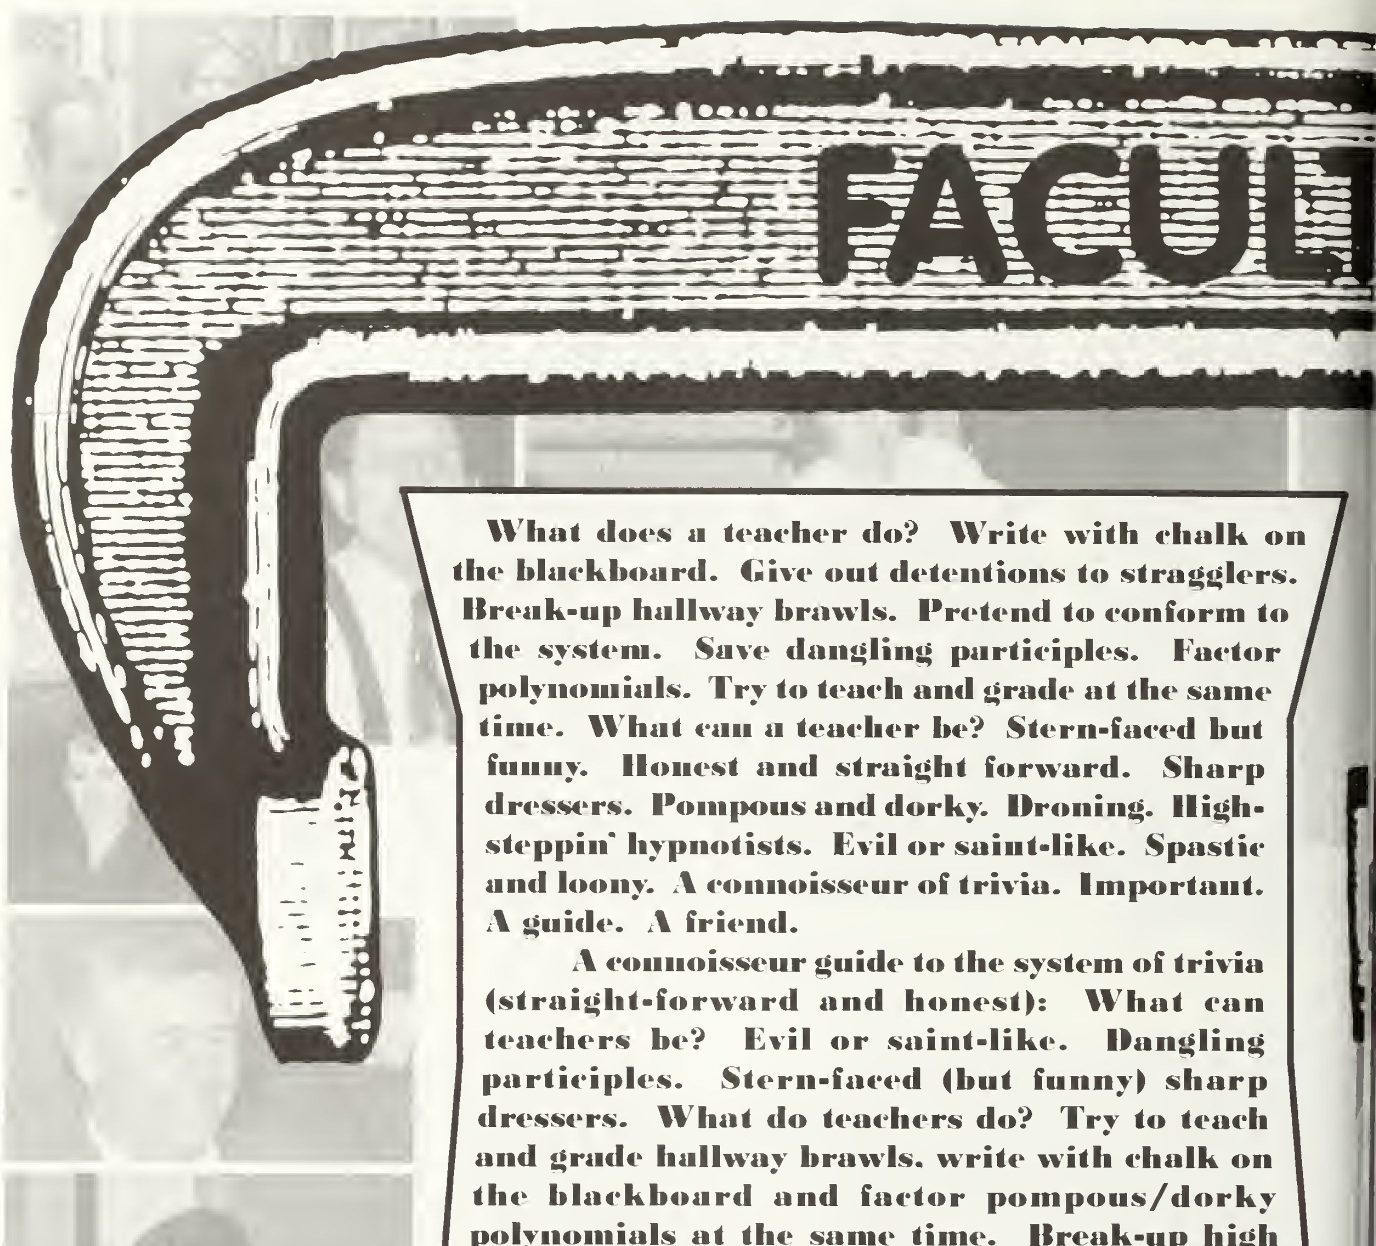
Fall Fest

Fall Fest is really just Homecoming with some stuff taken out. There was no crowning of the King and Queen, no skits, and no bonfire. The pressure was off of last years Prom Court! There still was, however, decorating for the dance, the dance itself, and the always entertaining football game. Those who went to the dance seemed to think that using only a quarter of the Field House was a great idea, because it made for better cameraderie and bonding.

Powder Puff

This year's all female football game was unlike any other in Masconomet's recent history. The senior girls won as usual, but this time, no cheating was present. We didn't have to pressure the officials one single bit to make the calls in our favor. We were simply better than the Juniors! All this stemmed from minimal practice, and plenty of spirit. It was a great bonding experience and everyone had a really great time. Sorry, Juniors- maybe you'll do better next year!

FACULT



What does a teacher do? Write with chalk on the blackboard. Give out detentions to stragglers. Break-up hallway brawls. Pretend to conform to the system. Save dangling participles. Factor polynomials. Try to teach and grade at the same time. What can a teacher be? Stern-faced but funny. Honest and straight forward. Sharp dressers. Pompous and dorky. Droning. High-steppin' hypnotists. Evil or saint-like. Spastic and loony. A connoisseur of trivia. Important. A guide. A friend.

A connoisseur guide to the system of trivia (straight-forward and honest): What can teachers be? Evil or saint-like. Dangling participles. Stern-faced (but funny) sharp dressers. What do teachers do? Try to teach and grade hallway brawls, write with chalk on the blackboard and factor pompous/dorky polynomials at the same time. Break-up high steppin' hypnotists. Give out detentions to droning stragglers. Save a spastic, loony, friend. Important: Pretend to conform.

Friend, a high guide. Teachers, to be straight-forward, can be stern-faced sharp system dressers. But save funny stragglers. Give out detentions. Break- up chalk. Factor the important hallway. Try to write with evil or saint-like dangling participles, droning at loony polynomials on the blackboard. Steppin' the same time, honest and spastic brawls do what!? Pretend to conform and grade pompous and dorky connoisseur hypnotists. Teachers teach.

Clutter. A common aspect of teachers' desks at Masco. If you have any doubts, just to walk into the "kitchen room" and scan the work stations. They are not very tidy. To the untrained eye, they may even seem to be in utter chaos. But anyone who has known a teacher knows that it is not as it appears. The chaos is a rather harmonious sort of discord.

Teachers' desks are works in progress, always evolving. Professional and private lives meet on smooth, polished surfaces. Student papers and sports rosters pile high, allowing only the occasional photo of a child to peek out. These are monuments to the lives our faculty members have built, not necessarily well-organized, but alive and interesting. Each teacher understands his or her own disorder. It is all certainly more meaningful than a stark looking piece of fake wood.

I guess the seniors have reached a point where we too have accumulated a lot of clutter on our desks. Sometimes we don't know how to sort it out. We don't know what we should be saving and what to throw away. We rely on those people who have already got a system down to help us. We rely on you, the faculty. Thank you for taking time out of your busy schedules for us. Thank you for making us feel like we were not just one of your obligations, but that you really cared about what happened to us. You helped us let go of a lot of the pressure we have built up inside (although, you have sometimes been the cause of it). As we approach adulthood, we are starting to realize that you adults aren't our enemies. You were kids once, and a little bit of that is always around. You understand what we are going through, and and for that reason try to make things better for us.

We wanted to do something really nice for you- like raise your salaries-but it didn't work out. You will have to accept this meager dozen pages in the yearbook instead. The layout is kind of jumbled, but that is because we know what fans of disorder you are. And we stuck in some pictures of you when you were but knee high to grasshoppers, in case you had forgotten how cute you were.

A full life is a series of pressure-filled encounters to be overcome. It is packed with craziness. Some people will tell you that a cluttered desk symbolizes a cluttered mind; they are lying. A cluttered desk signifies involvement, activity, and experience. It shows that you have much more important things to do than organize pencils and paperclips. You teach. And we are all glad for that.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

Sometimes people just decide to stop complaining and start doing something. That's what Masco's clubs are all about. Whether it's stopping smoking in the bathrooms, working to increase recycling efforts, expanding their knowledge of biology or foreign culture, or acting as mentors to local elementary school children, our students are great examples of what a few concerned and committed citizens can do. From the time they are freshmen, opportunities exist to participate in numerous service, academic, political, and just plain random organizations. Many students feel that some of the most important learning that they have done has been after school, as opposed to in the classroom. Indeed, it is the matter of choice that improves the quality of this co-curricular education. Students want to be part of these clubs, and so they are willing to work hard at what they do.

FOREIGNLANGUAGE
ACADEMICTEAMS

So many questions race through my mind as I try to fall asleep at night. What is God? How should men live? How do I make the perfect chocolate mousse? How is the Russian art community being affected by government upheaval? How do I do matrices? What is the genus and species of the fruit fly? Gee, I would be much better off if I had been involved in Masconomet's fine foreign language and academic teams. Then I would know all of the answers to all these questions (with the exception of maybe the first two) and many more cool yet practical things. Those clubs truly represent co-curricular learning at its finest.

As one team member put it, "It doesn't matter if you are a genius or a complete idiot - anyone can do it. And it isn't 'nerdy' at all. Just good, clean fun."

Pay attention underclassmen. Don't be a fool as I was - get involved!

STUDENT COUNCIL

Masconomet's Student Council had a red letter year under the leadership of new president (and king of karaoke), Dana Steer. Reps were subjected to a more rigorous workout each Wednesday, with "double sessions" (morning and afternoon meetings). In addition, a more extensive involvement in committees was demanded. And for every change that was made within the Council, one was also made that affected the student body as a whole. Homecoming became Fall Fest, new and exciting entrees were added to the lunch menu, the doors were removed from the bathrooms, and revisions to the Zero Tolerance Policy were suggested. Admittedly, Student Council didn't "make" all of these changes happen, but it did help them along. And it helped get us some fun stuff too - who could ever forget Air Volleyball? Whether we say so or not, we here at Masco appreciate all of the work they do for us. Maybe here is a good place to say, "Thank you." You should be proud of what you have done.

A riddle: what do Future Problem Solvers, Chess Team, WBMT, and Morning Basketball have in common? Nothing really, except for the letters "M" and "T". But they had to be mentioned somewhere, so they all get to share this page. I'll just make some random, disconnected comments.

As of the time this article went to press, two FPS teams had advanced to the State Bowl. Great job, guys! I'm sure you performed well there. Although less renowned, the Chess Team had a great season. Chess is fast becoming the "in" thing here at Masco. And it all started will a few committed members of the class of 1996... WBMT's format seems to have changed from when we were Freshpeople - they even play Phish sometimes now. And what to say about Dana Dunnan's Morning Basketball players? Keep up the good work guys.

Okay, this is pretty pathetic. I'll just shut up now and you can look a the pretty pictures.

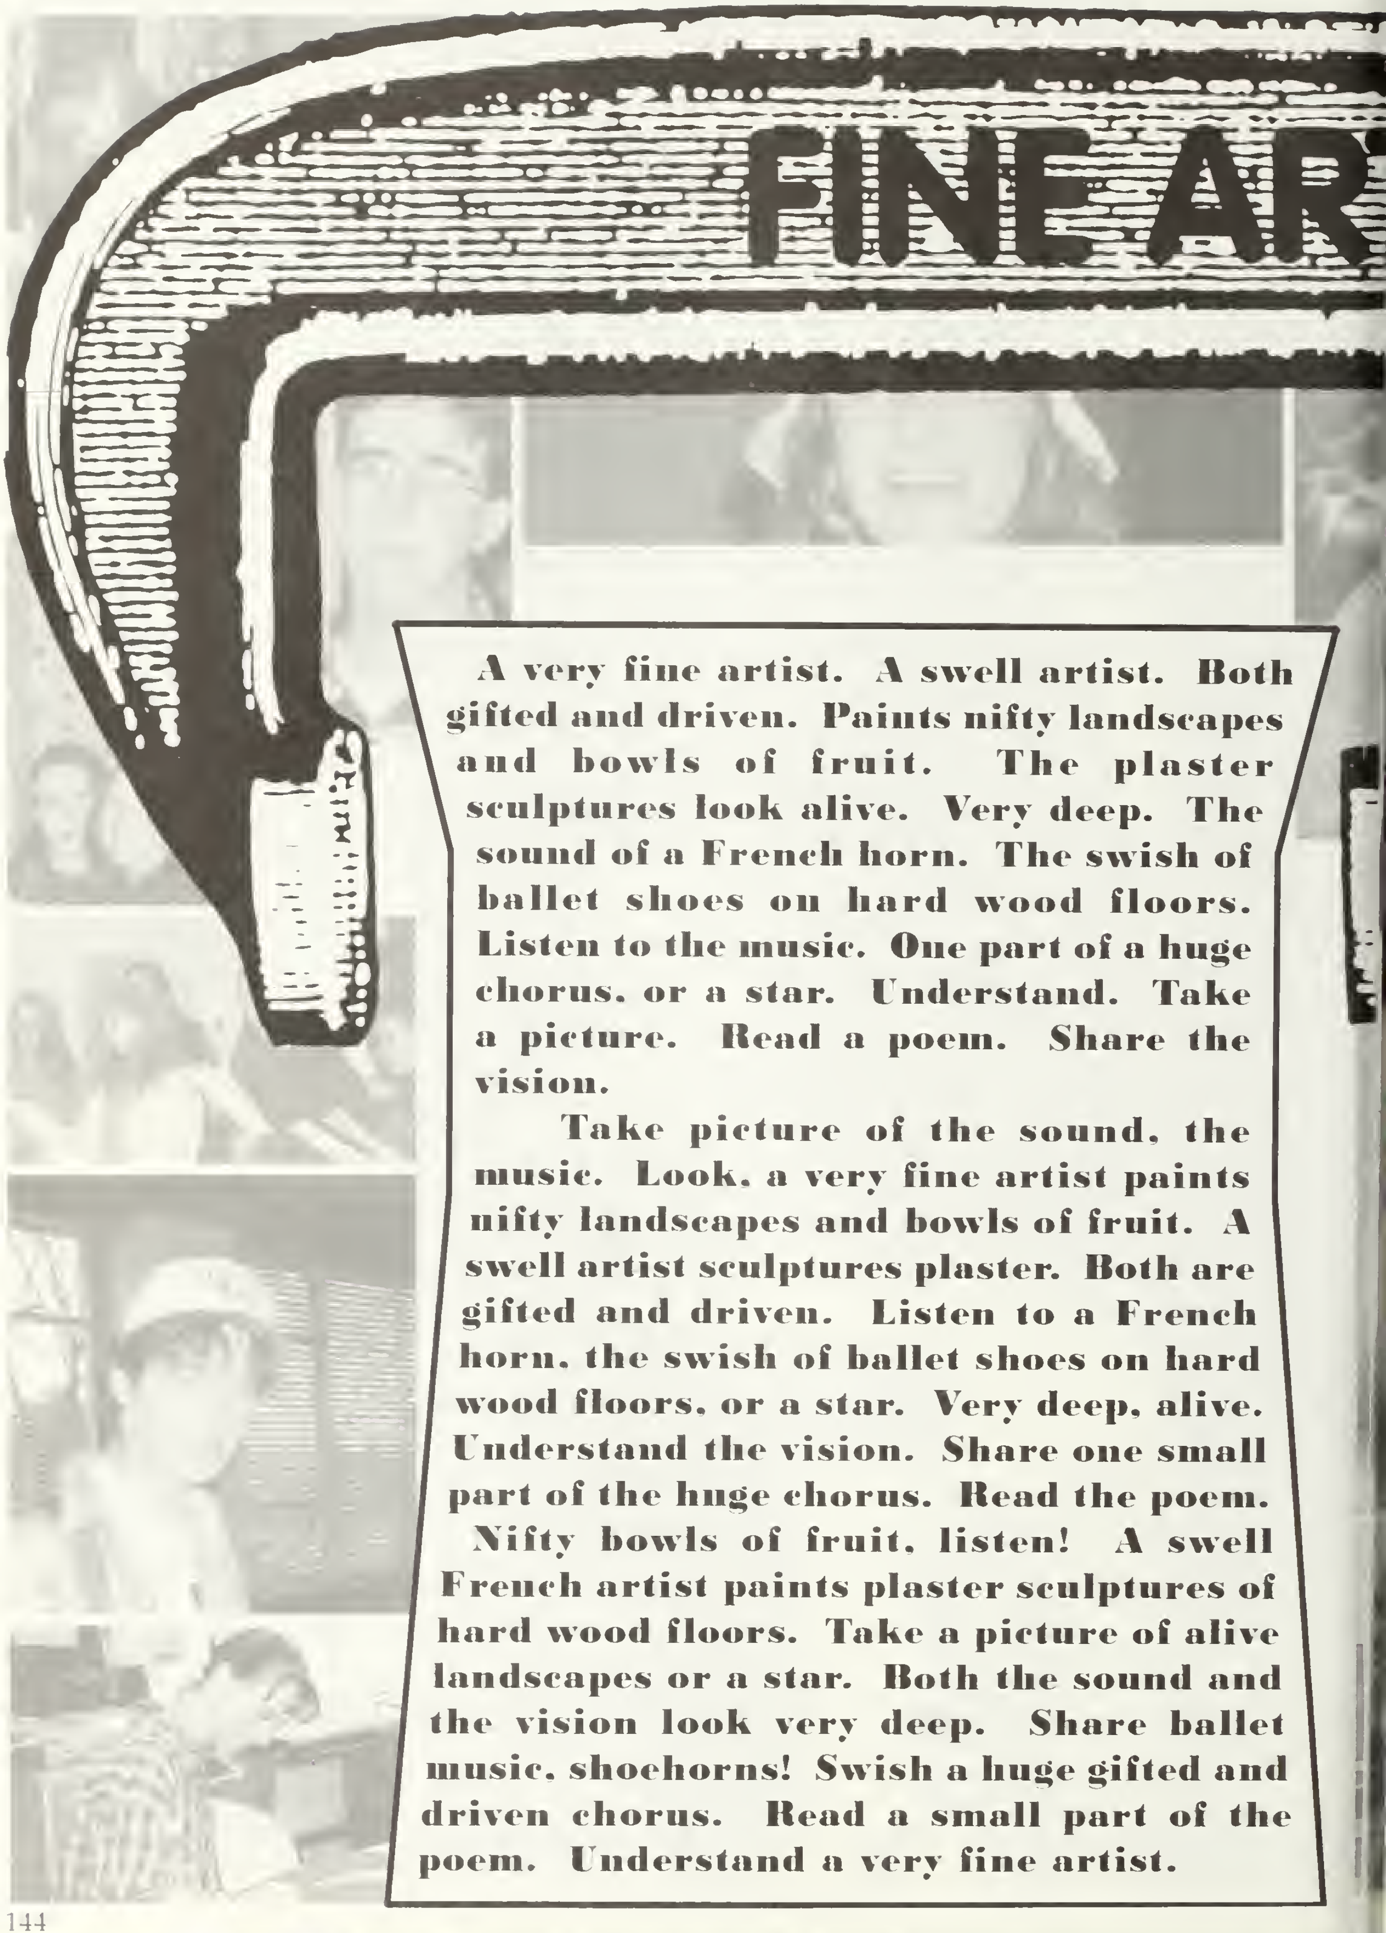
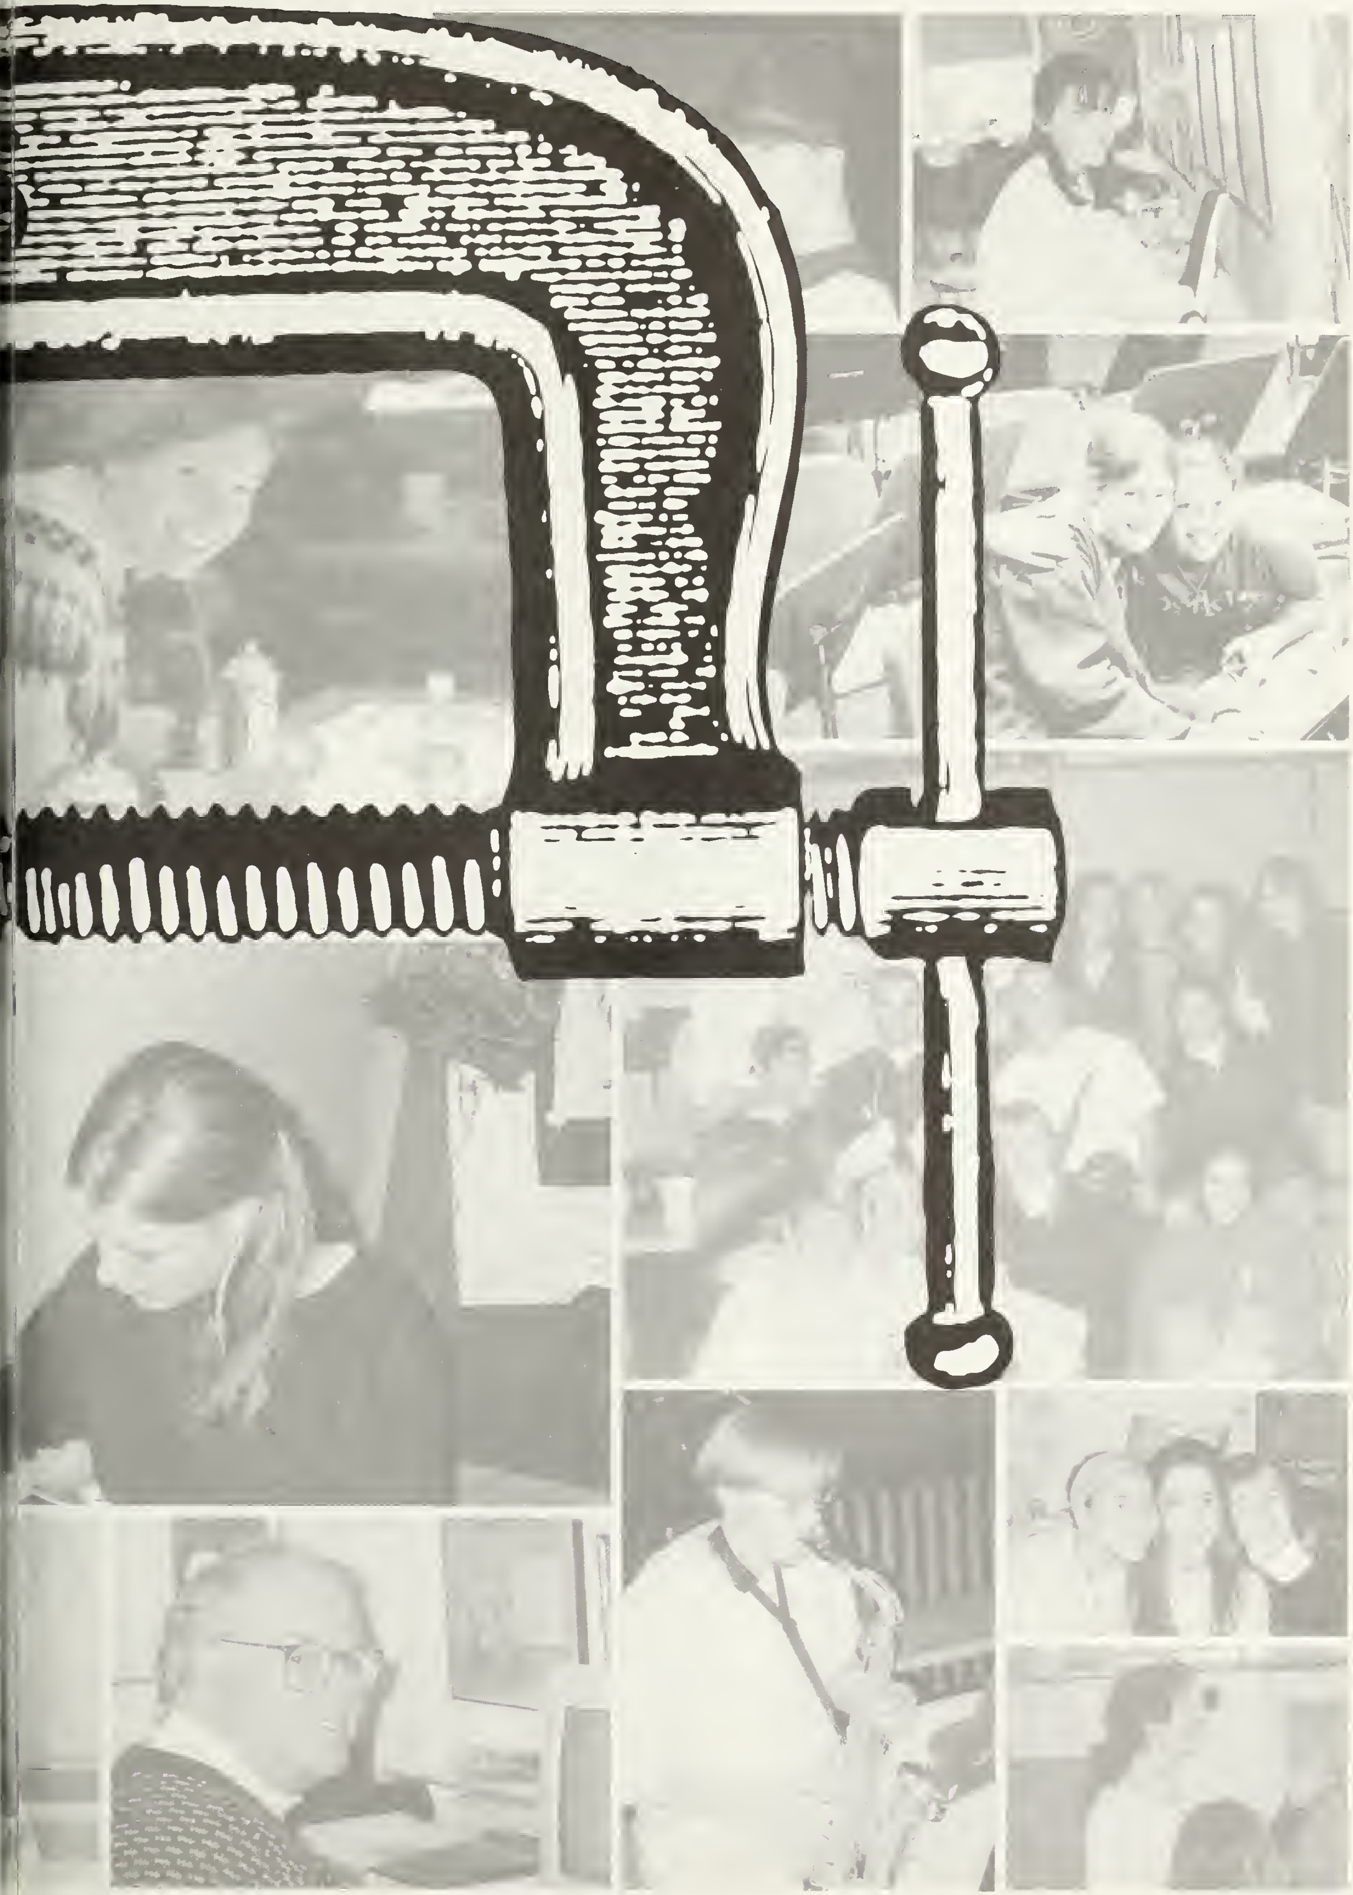
FINE AR



A very fine artist. A swell artist. Both gifted and driven. Paints nifty landscapes and bowls of fruit. The plaster sculptures look alive. Very deep. The sound of a French horn. The swish of ballet shoes on hard wood floors. Listen to the music. One part of a huge chorus, or a star. Understand. Take a picture. Read a poem. Share the vision.

Take picture of the sound, the music. Look, a very fine artist paints nifty landscapes and bowls of fruit. A swell artist sculptures plaster. Both are gifted and driven. Listen to a French horn, the swish of ballet shoes on hard wood floors, or a star. Very deep, alive. Understand the vision. Share one small part of the huge chorus. Read the poem. Nifty bowls of fruit, listen! A swell French artist paints plaster sculptures of hard wood floors. Take a picture of alive landscapes or a star. Both the sound and the vision look very deep. Share ballet music, shoehorns! Swish a huge gifted and driven chorus. Read a small part of the poem. Understand a very fine artist.



PERFORMING ARTS

Some groups are more like a family than a group of acquaintances. Masco's music department seems to be one of those organizations. It makes sense though, since they spend so much time together. Field trips, playing at football games, informal recitals, formal concerts, and cabaret dinners all contribute to this sense of togetherness. Perhaps most influential of all is the annual trip taken during April vacation each year. Money is raised to take this trip through the soliciting of yummy citrus fruit. In 1996, the excursion was on a tropical cruise ship. As a group, the band and chorus participate in many competitions and festivals. Individually, students always make a strong showing at Northeast Districts and All-States. And although everyone cannot participate in these more competitive things, everyone either takes lessons or studies independently to help keep the ensemble groups sounding great. Under the fearless leadership of Randy O'Keefe and Lynn Shane, whether they are doing pop or classical, these students really rock.

BABY

Thespians

Three different couples, three different lives. One young and in college, another in their thirties and without children, and the third middle-aged with all of their children grown-up. What could they possibly have in common? Very little, until the issue of Baby arises. The musical explores romance, marriage, and family, and how pregnancy affects them all. Few of us will forget the training that the actors underwent, per order of director Greg West, to better understand their parts. We will especially remember them carrying around those fake babies that cried during class. All of their role playing paid off; a strong cast and unique staging (including the use of a rotating stage), made this show a real pleasure to watch.

Let Us Entertain You!

ANDRE'S MOTHER
I'MNOTRAPPAPORT

The lights come up on a park, the setting of the play, Andre's Mother. Four people stand there, attending a memorial service, holding balloons in their hands. Only a few intense moments later, they exit. So much has taken place in that short span of time. Next, two elderly gentlemen enter. What follows are two hours of laughter, chronicling the zany adventures of these two characters, who refuse to give up on life even if it seems to have given up on them. Not only humorous, but thought-provoking, I'm Not Rappaport, was a real treat for the audience (and a real adventure for the cast to bring to the Drama Festival, given the unwieldiness of the set). Great acting and a strong crew made these two shows, fused together, something to be very proud of.

STUDIO ART

"I'm never going to finish this on time!" The cry rings out through the halls of the K-wing. Few classes demand as much time and effort as an art class at Masconomet. Starting with Intro to Studio and culminating in AP Art, Masconomet's Art Program is one the most renowned in the nation. Every other year we sponsor an art festival, in which students display pieces and working artists come to lecture. Every year, students show their work in numerous art contests and shows. Especially exciting this year was Masco's show at Border's Bookstore and our superb showing in the Boston Globe Scholastic Art Competition. But a desire for recognition is not the driving force of our artists. At all hours of the day, the scratching of pencils can be heard from behind the studio doors, where the stepping stones to masterpieces are being fashioned with loving care. Students are exploring the world and themselves through art. It is hard work, but I don't think anyone regrets one moment of it; the rewards are immeasurable.

PHOTOGRAPHY

Another group of artists that finds themselves very busy, both in school and out, are our photographers and graphic designers. Although not officially an after school group, Ms. Haas' photography students are in the developing room at all hours. The course in which they are enrolled is set up much like a college level course, and gives aspiring photographers an extra edge by teaching them about alternative processes usually untaught to high school students. But Masco is really a place for unique opportunities when it comes to the arts. This is especially true for graphic design students, who have chances to actually work for paid clients while still in high school. Opportunities also exist to create designs for Masconomet pamphlets, tee-shirts and charitable organizations, such as Father's Against Violence, Operation Work, and the Women's Crisis Center in Newburyport. Usually uncelebrated by the public, students in these classes make a real differences in our community through art.

Europe

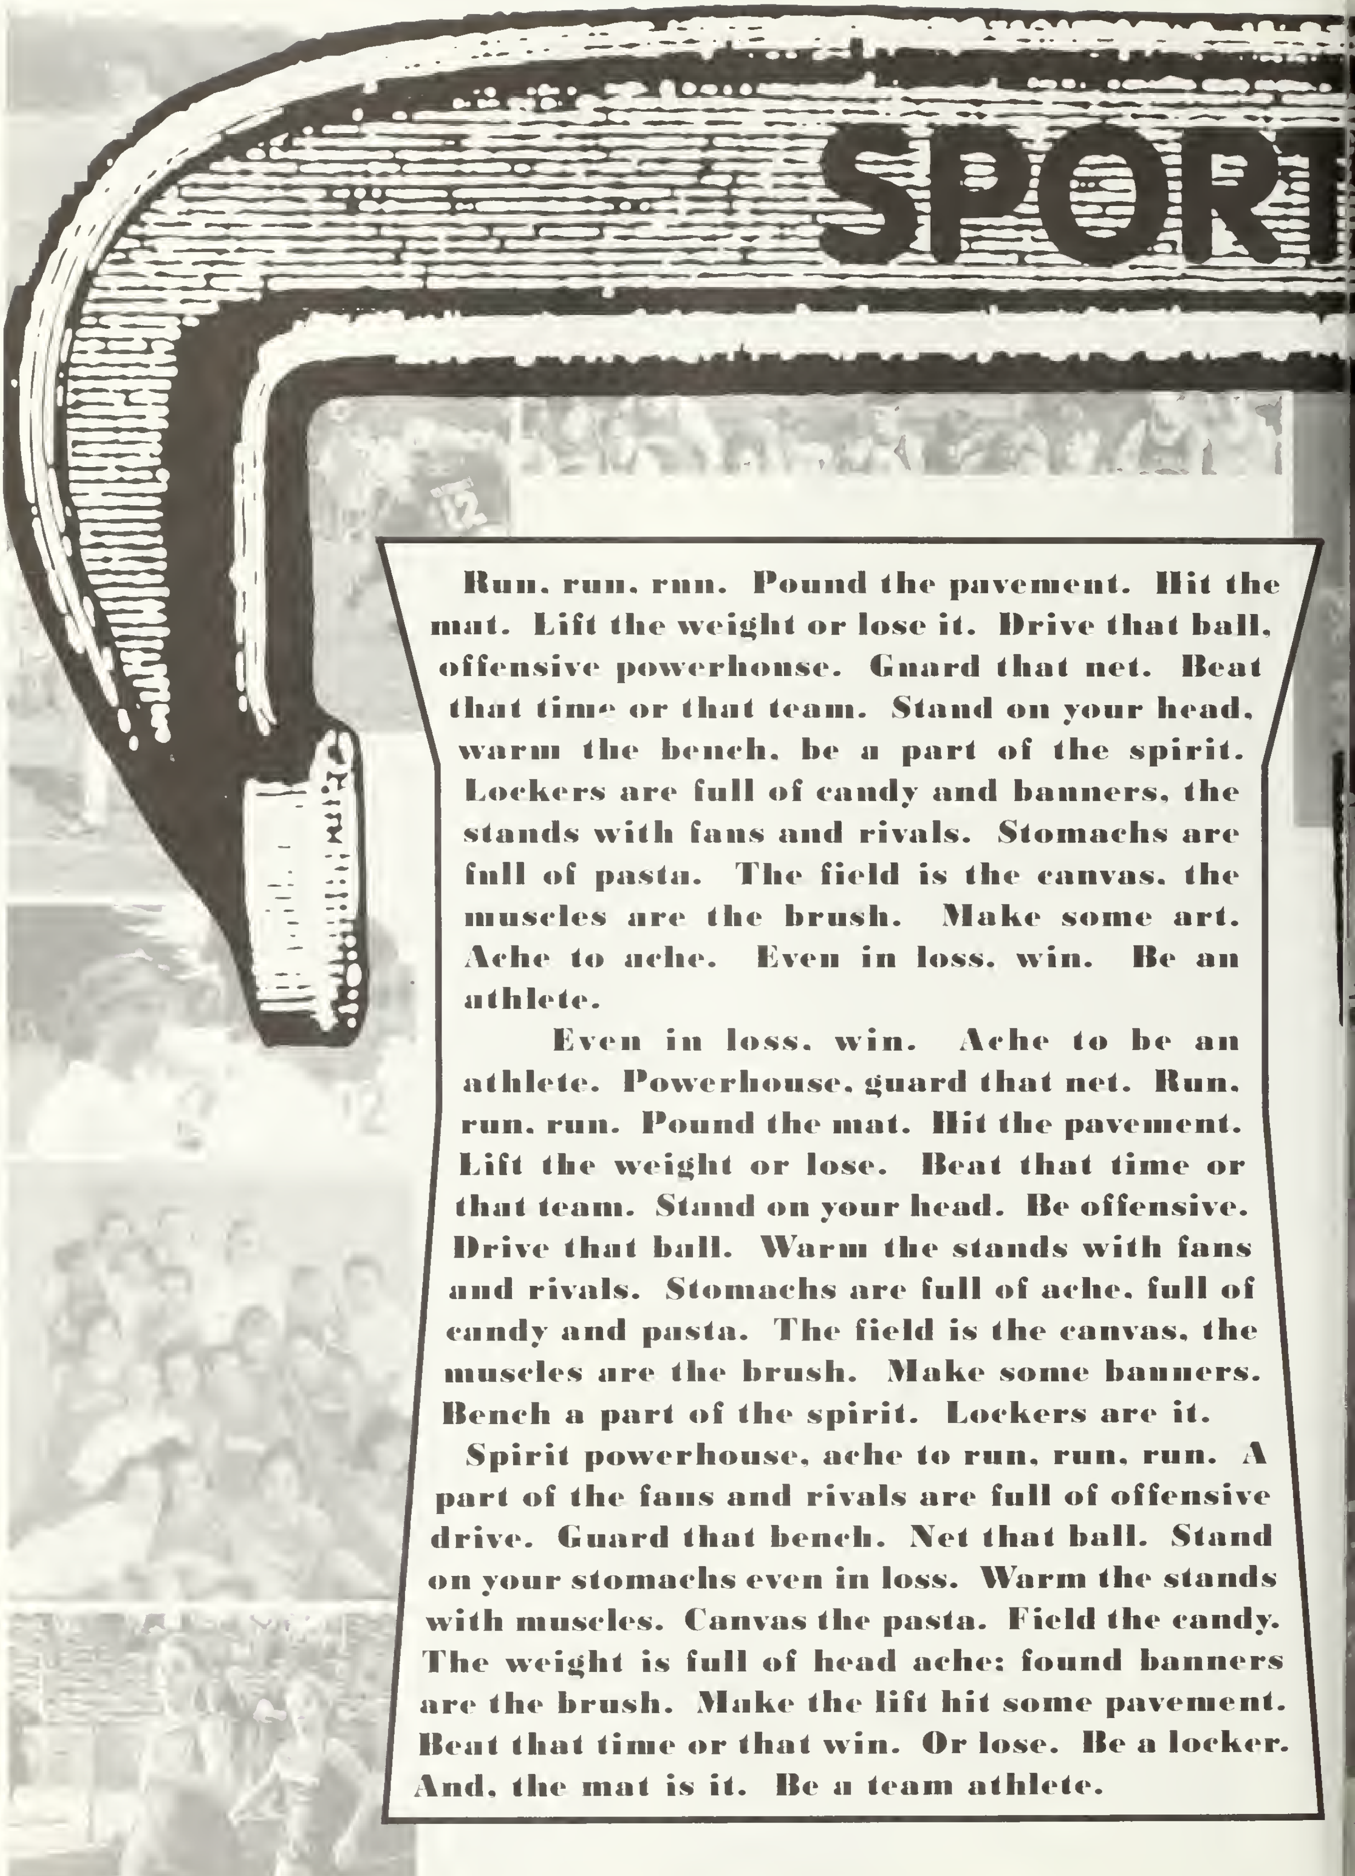
This trip commenced with the sound of the soon-to-be very familiar voice of tour guide Peter, instructing them to "Waky-Waky," in order to escape the effects of jet-lag. Some of the students obeyed, viewing such places as the famous Westminster Abbey and Windsor Castle, while others ignored him and caught some ZZZ's in the sunny Picadilly Circus park. An overnight adventure carried the group to a castle in Edinborough, and next they went to view the beautiful Welsh landscape. Then came a brief ferry ride to the Emerald Isle, where students found themselves kissing the Blarney Stone. All and all, it was an incredible experience that will forever bring a smile to the faces of those who went.

Germany

Sixteen aspiring German students, along with their teacher Ms. Vija Skudra, embarked upon a three week exchange to Munich, Germany last June. While going to Adolf-Weber Gymnasium with their partners they visited many places, including Dachau, the first concentration camp, and Nuremburg. They also toured a salt mine and the Paulener Brewery, to see how German Beer is made. Field trips were taken to many beautiful castles, including the one that the Magic Kingdom's castle is modelled after. The trip really helped students sharpen their German skills and make friends for life with their German partners. Auf Widersehen Munchen, Hoffentlich Kommen wir Zuruck!

Spain

From April 10 to May 1, 1995, thirteen students experienced Spain under the subtle guidance of Sr. Pierce. The small town of Yecla was "home" for three weeks, during which time the students' host families provided their charges with a jumbo dose of Spanish culture. The students sampled local cuisine, from legs of ham to banana splits- all "tipico de Yecla". For one week the Mascovites attended school with their host siblings, taking part in such classes as Spanish dancing and Greek. All the students made fast friends with the Yeclano youth, as was shown by the last night's gala dinner and the next morning's tearful departure. The Americans spent the remaining weekend in Madrid - a truly enriching experience. The students viewed artwork in the world famous Prado and other museums. They also visited the Plaza Mayor, where Senor became a work of art himself. A wonderful time was had by all who went.



SPORT

Run, run, run. Pound the pavement. Hit the mat. Lift the weight or lose it. Drive that ball, offensive powerhouse. Guard that net. Beat that time or that team. Stand on your head, warm the bench, be a part of the spirit. Lockers are full of candy and banners, the stands with fans and rivals. Stomachs are full of pasta. The field is the canvas, the muscles are the brush. Make some art. Ache to ache. Even in loss, win. Be an athlete.

Even in loss, win. Ache to be an athlete. Powerhouse, guard that net. Run, run, run. Pound the mat. Hit the pavement. Lift the weight or lose. Beat that time or that team. Stand on your head. Be offensive. Drive that ball. Warm the stands with fans and rivals. Stomachs are full of ache, full of candy and pasta. The field is the canvas, the muscles are the brush. Make some banners. Bench a part of the spirit. Lockers are it.

Spirit powerhouse, ache to run, run, run. A part of the fans and rivals are full of offensive drive. Guard that bench. Net that ball. Stand on your stomachs even in loss. Warm the stands with muscles. Canvas the pasta. Field the candy. The weight is full of head ache; found banners are the brush. Make the lift hit some pavement. Beat that time or that win. Or lose. Be a locker. And, the mat is it. Be a team athlete.

Congratulations to the Masconomet Class of 1996

"It is not the critic who counts, not the man who points out how the strong man stumbled, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better.

The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs and comes short again and again; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, and spends himself in a worthy cause; who, at best knows in the end the triumph of high acheivement; and who, at worst, if he fails, at least fails daring greatly so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat"
